DETAILED ACTION

1. This is in response to the applicant appeal brief filed 12/06/07. Prosecution is reopened.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 5, 11, 14, and 15 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wash, US Patent No. 4,974,096.

Wash discloses a camera 200 having microprocessor 215 for reading a track 600, wherein the track includes an ID code 625 (header) for identifying the type of information recorded in the body of the track, the ID code permits recording of more than one piece (type) of information in the data field, based on the type ID code specific instructions or parameters are invoked by control means to properly read and process the code information; read only memories 240/700/800. (See fig. 6, col. 10-12).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 8, 9, and 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP Patent Publication (KoKai) No. 2002-125008, cited in the background of the specification, in view of Wash, US Patent No. 4,974,096.

Kokai discloses a method of registering ring tone data by rendering cellular phone ring into two-dimensional code that is then printed and read by a camera, the method comprising: a recorded image on a medium; a camera 111 for reading the image; a telephone 10 for extracting information in the image; a storage medium for storing information (see page 1 of the specification, the English abstract of Kokai, and fig. 3).

Kokai fails to disclose or fairly suggests that the code includes a header code (an identifier) for identifying the type of data contains in the body so as to appropriately read the code.

Wash has been discussed above.

In view of wash teachings, it would have obvious for a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made to modify the teachings of Kokai so that different type of data could be used to provide ring tone data. For instance, 1D, 2D, matrix codes, or other type codes can be used instead of or in combination of to represent the ring tone data, wherein the ID code could be used to invoke the appropriate parameters to effectively process the coded information. Such modification would make the system more robust, more convenient, and more effective, by providing a device that is useable with multiple applications within the spectrum. Regarding displaying non-encrypted/non-encoded information, such as text/numbers, image etc., the terminal of Kokai is capable of displaying such information. Therefore, it would have been obvious for an artisan to modify the system as such as an extension as taught by Kokai.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
